The Drug Laws, By Susan Neiburg, is a fair assesment of the drug law situation facing our nation today. We are a torn country around pretty much every big issue, and drug laws are not an exeption. Susan Terkel approaches the drug law fight head on, coming from every angle analyzing the pros and cons. The Drug Laws That Changed How We Punish. Rockefeller launched his campaign to toughen New York's laws at a press conference in January 1973 — almost exactly 40 years ago. He called for something unheard of: mandatory prison sentences of 15 years to life for drug dealers and addicts — even those caught with small amounts of marijuana, cocaine or heroin.
